***INTERNET CAUTIONS***

The Internet is a wonderful tool to find information regarding just about every subject area, including Diabetes. However, this material is uncensored. Check for disclaimers when visiting a website.

Be careful when purchasing products. For example, purchasing insulin and having it shipped by conventional methods may expose it to extreme cold or heat.

Before changing any medications or insulin, consult with your healthcare provider.

Be cautious of vitamins, minerals, herbs, and alternative medicines. Discuss any new information or products with your healthcare provider before trying them. Some of these substances may actually worsen your condition.

Many of these websites offer products that may not be supported by the American Diabetes Association.
